Rupert Caplan of the CBC's Montreal studios who guides the broadcast activities of such drama series as Way of the Spirit, on Sundays, Laura Lin on Mondays to Fridays, and numerous CBC Wednesday Night features originating in Montreal. He has been heard over heels in dramatics ever since his high school days. First he acted in New York under Eugene O'Neill, then returned to Montreal where he has been connected with radio ever since his infancy, as actor, writer and producer. He's still interested in legitimate drama, though, and has produced more than five hundred theatre plays in addition to his radio productions, which are legion.

LEGION NOTES

The Legion Executive wishes to extend cordial invitation to all War veterans of their affiliation with the local branch of the Canadian Legion to attend the traditional annual banquet that will be held in the Municipal Hall at 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, November 11th. COURAGE

"Courage is the price that life exacts for granting peace. The soul that knows it not, knows no release from little things;

Knows not the vivid loneliness of fear, Nor mountain heights, where bitter joy can hear The sound of wings.

How can life grant us boon of living, compensate For dull grey ignorance and pregnant hate, Unless we dare

The soul's dominion, Each time we make choice we pay With courage to behold the resistless day And count it fair."

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE APPEAL

Alberta Objective $50,000.

Raymond Objective $550.00

The local centre of the St. John Ambulance Association supports the National Campaign that was opened on November 1st and will be continued until November 20th across Canada. To assist in this drive a local committee was organized under the Honorary Chairmanship of Dr. J.H. Walker with John Landysheff as a campaign chairman and other members as follows:

John Housley representing Raymond First Aid Group and Sugar Factory First Aid Group.
Arthur Atwood representing the Sugar Factory First Aid Group
Varold Rolison representing the rural First Aiders

Glen Adams representing Stirling First Aiders.
Edward Wagstaff representing Canadian Legion.

John Forsyth representing the Hogshead Group

At the organizational meeting held on Tuesday, November 2nd, in the Town Hall at 8:00 p.m. it was decided to carry a house to house canvass during the period covering from November 1st to 20th. With this in view the town was divided in two regions, with the First Aiders and Canadian Legion pledging to carry out the canvassing. Funds collected will be deposited in the Bank of Montreal and then at the end of the campaign transferred to the Provincial Headquarters at Edmonton.

The Committee trusts that this undertaking will be wholeheartedly supported by the people of Raymond and district who have been fortunate in having enjoyed the services provided by the Order of St. John in training local First Aiders and providing First Aid Service at Public Gatherings. These services have been maintained consistently since 1923 and at present the Town of Raymond has a large number of both Senior and Junior First Aiders besides industrial team at the Sugar Factory.

It is believed that the people of this town will join the thousands of appreciative Canadians wishing to give some tangible evidence of their support of the great public service daily performed by the Order of St. John and will, therefore, contribute generously to the National Appeal now underway.

Cantata "Exodus" Meets Approval Large Audience

Sunday evening in the Stake House a capacity crowd gathered to hear for the first time a Cantata, "Exodus" written by C. F. Tollestrup, well known throughout southern Alberta as a talented musician.

The Cantata was under the direction of Mr. Tollestrup and under his guidance the beautiful Cantata portraying in drama and music the exodus of the saints from Nauvoo to Salt Lake unfolded.

The twenty five voice chorus was accompanied by a six piece orchestra and Mr. Tollestrup was also responsible for the writing of the orchestrations. The words Mr. Tollestrup took from the Psalms almost entirely and weaving a tableau about the exodus of the saints from Nauvoo Mr. Tollestrup's Cantata told of the great driving force behind the saints and their leader.

The beautiful music stirred the audience deeply and all were very favorable in their comments of this, Mr. Tollestrup's latest work.

At the end of the performance Mr. and Mrs. Tollestrup were called to the stage and Mrs. Elizabeth King on behalf of the chorus and orchestra presented Mr. Tollestrup with a pen and pencil set and Mrs. Tollestrup with a bouquet of mums.

We feel that the Cantata should be given again as in one performance it is almost impossible to get all the beauty of the music and force of it.

This is not Mr. Tollestrup's first work and his name is known in the country to our south as a fine composer and his works are known there. His Cantata "Moroni, The Solitary Seer", has been played at the Hill Cannorah many times.

HISTORY OF RAYMOND

By ELIZABETH KING

FORMER RAYMOND MAYOR AND PRESIDENT OF AGRICULTURE ASSOCIATION.

Thomas Jefferson O'Brien came to Raymond from Layton, Utah in 1903 in connection with the Knight-Sugar Co's operations in this district and from the day of his arrival until the time of his sudden passing he freely gave his friendship, his time and his talents to the service of his fellow men. Even before coming to Canada T. J. O'Brien was a native son. He died a 34 year mission to New Zealand.

He led the Layton Choir for many years and taught school there for a long time. The late J. W. Evans and John H. E. Green, both pioneers of the district were pupils of his school and these men paid high tribute to him as their friend and school teacher. Evans stated that: "His was one of the finer things of life were always evidenced by the maxims he gave his students for a living practice".

In a letter John Green wrote to Mr. O'Brien on his 50th birthday he paid this tribute to him: "When I was a small boy and you in your teens and later when I was in my teens and you in young manhood I always looked upon you as a little above the average. There was something in you I always admired."

"You seemed to have a magnetic spirit that always drew people to you and always you have been as true and loyal to friends as the magnetic needle to the pole."

"As I look over the experiences in the old brick school house in the hollow 'Hawk's Hollow', there are none of the teachers so outstanding as Thomas Jefferson O'Brien."

In talking with his daughter Angelina, she paid a tender and fitting tribute to her father by saying: "My Dad was one of the best hearted men that ever lived on his farm. In his quiet way he seemed to sense and understand the needs of people and immediately set out to help them. Since my father's death dozens of people have told me they would have gone hungry had it not been for the help of my father."

Mr. O'Brien held many civic positions in the town of Raymond.

He was at one time Justice of the Peace, Bailiff, Mayor from 1915 to 1919. He was town councillorman perhaps longer than any other man.

Town records reveal he was councilman from 1907 to 1915 when he was elected Mayor. From an old Raymond Rustler, edited by David T. Elton and dated October 8, 1907 with cut of T. J. O'Brien and under caption in large headlines we read the following: "Who hasn't watched with a keen interest the work of the Raymond Agricultural Association? Ever since the dissolution with the Desert Agricultural Assoc. (Mugth) there has been a good lively organization here. Mr. T. J. O'Brien, Field Superintendent for the Knight Sugar Factory is one of the most popular men among the farmers not only in Raymond but throughout the whole of southern Alberta. He is also one of the 'Boys' when it comes to the baseball diamond. It is as simple as his 'A.B.C.'s."

He is in love with Southern Alberta for the opportunities that she presents for the young and willin. More over, from a farmer's scientific view he reasons that Alberta is the best. His work in connection with the

FOR PARENTS ONLY

By Nancy Cleaver

Some little children are afraid of animals. They run to their mother if they see a dog, coming toward them. They are fearful of the great big pussy who lives at a neighbor's home. It is only by gradual degrees that parents can persuade these timid child en to overcome their fear. Sometimes this fear goes back to a bad scare when the child was very young. But by the time a child is old enough to go to school usually he has become interested in animals and wants to have a pet of his own.

A very little child should not be left with a strange dog or cat without supervision. A child may "love" an animal so hard that he squeezes it and hurts it. Or the animal may want to sleep or be left alone to eat his meal. The child may annoy the animal so much at a bad time, that a usually good tempered beast may scratch or bite—and who can blame him?

Children are sometimes unwittingly cruel—as when little girls attempt to dress a kitten in doll clothes and bundle the poor little thing so much that it is in an exhausted, angry mood. Small boys in their eagerness to teach a puppy tricks may keep at their little dog until he is stubborn and worn out.

In the matter of having pets, children on a farm are in a much better position than city children. Many rural children have a pet calf or a pet colt. Usually there is a family dog—a collie or some other dog who fetches the cows and has a real place as a watch dog. A good mouser in a cat is a real asset in a barn. The cost of a generous saucer of milk for a tubby and her kittens, does not matter so much where cows are milked twice a day. There is plenty of space for children and pets to have lots of exercise on a farm. Then too, there are no near neighbors who dislike pets and are on the lookout for a dog or cat who might stray onto their property.

In a city home parents should consider carefully whether or not they can afford not only the initial cost of a pet, but the money needed for food, and extra expenses such as the annual dog tax and a veterinary's bill when a pet falls ill. Pets need more supervision in the city and it is a rather pathetic sight to see a big dog ed up in a small back yard in the hot summer weather.

Most parents realize that a satisfactory pet adds much to a child's happiness (and his affection between the child and the pet is a fine thing). But when a child pleads to own a pet parents also feel that he should be old enough to share in its care. Otherwise, the who's burden falls on the parents (usually mother, because she is home most of the time). But children do need to be reminded that their pet needs regular meals, and needs to be kept clean and well cared for. After the novelty has worn off, the job of feeding a pet is apt to be forgotten, unless a child is reminded of this task. In a city apartment, parents sometimes buy gold fish as pets or a pet bird such as a canary or "budgie" because they are less care. Some children get a great deal of pleasure from a pet bunny. But a pussy or a dog is the most popular choice for a child's pet.

As one small boy wrote in a composition, "My dog Skipper sits down quietly beside me. We both are happy just being near each other."

A forest ranger in Arizona frequently saw an Indian chief riding his horse up the canyon trail, his wife trudging along behind him. "Why is it?" the ranger asked one day "that you always ride and your wife walks?" "Because", was the solemn reply "she no gottem horse."

How To Multiply $24.00

There is a legend that Manhattan

Island was sold by the Indians for $24, and look what happened. Cecilia Staples went to Manhattan Island with a capital of $24 and turned it into a large display goods manufacturing business that even with income tax what it is today nets her a pretty penny.

If you have seen department store windows sporting curled paper poodles or sequinned fish or sparkling sleighs as part of the setting for their merchandise there's a very good chance that the firm of Staples-Smith of New York supplied those fantasies.

Graduate of Pratt Institute Cecilia Staples decided to see what she could do with her minute capital in the way of supplying props for display windows. Paper was cheap and scissors easily available tools. She began making all sorts of outlandish parakeets, ostriches, caterpillars and so on. A lot of these at first were just a case of making use of the child's fish rainy day pastime of curling strands of paper with the edge of the scissors.

Anyway, although Miss Staples had trouble selling her odd creations at first the organization grew and now employs from 120 to 150 people. Most of them have artistic imaginations and the studio, which was once a bank building is full of weird constructions—a guardsman of paper-mache a lady of the eighties on skates, a giant easter egg, a sunfish with beaded enrustations, a horse made of angel's hair, flowers made of silver tinsel, display heads made of chicken wire.

HOME DECORATOR

As if it weren't enough to constantly devise new subjects and dream up uses for new materials in the display field, Miss Staples redecorates her apartment ten to a dozen times a year.

Besides supplying the finished products for display windows she also helps plan them. She decorates peoples homes for parties and for year round living and does contract work in making up the decorative backgrounds for centennial celebrations of cities and builds floats for parades.

Before getting into the display field Miss Staples did fashion work, costume design and the usual round of commercial art. Feeling that the average mankin standing somewhat stupidly in a store window lacked the verve and the spark to loosen up buyers purse strings she submitted designs to several department store managers who promptly threw up their hands and shouted "No, no, a thousand times no." They were too expensive; they were too imaginative; the public would not understand them; it was too far a departure from the conventional—but constant battle and the tremendous increase in traffic past windows and into stores that used Staple displays convinced even the most skeptical of display buyers.

From Juneau, Alaska, to California sunny shores there is hardly a city today that does not use one of the allied Staples-Smith display items. Where once the wax mankin, since melted off the display scene was depended on to carry a story to the buying public, now men and women of artistic talent, trained in merchandising, plan displays that will catch the eye, hold it and create a desire to buy. Like many new ideas it sounds obvious on repetition. The carry through is not easy, however or it requires the combined talents of many.

APER SANTA CLAUS

As an example of how a special effect can be created, the Santa Claus sitting on his throne may contain paper, paste, wire, paints, lacquers, sequins, glass cloth fabrics and wood. From an abstract skeleton patch of wood and wire covered with a shell of chicken wire, the Santa is built up with the use of layer after layer of special paper, dampened with paste into form, dried with infrared lamps, and smoothly shaped with sandpaper. He is then sprayed with

My Week

by R. J. Doachman

It was a week ago today a cold rain had fallen during the night but the weather started to clear and the sun broke through the last traces of clouds looking as if it had its face washed during the night.

The rain of the last few days had weakened the hold of the leaves, a breeze started to blow and as I walked down the street the leaves began to fall. They were not wind driven, they simply got tired of holding on and let go. What a glorious thing it was for the children they laughed and cheered while they chased the falling leaves.

That reminds me of something Leo Doherty our energetic director of Tourist Trade wants to do, something I have always wanted to see done. He thinks the tourist season should be extended at least one month. All that is needed is to make people conscious of the fact that fall is a good season, very restful and beautiful, a lovely time for a holiday.

George Gallop the man who handles the Gallop Poll has this to say of elections:

"The mind of the voters is probably made up before the campaign starts. The campaign helps to hold the voter to his convictions but otherwise the campaign is not of much value."

It does seem doesn't it, that the wise political policy would call for the spending of some money between elections instead of trying to convert the converted during the campaign but this never seems to occur to our political friends. I cannot recall any past effort in this direction.

One of the strangest puzzles in this modern world is the position of France. France is alongside Belgium and Belgium, so it is said, is now one of the most prosperous countries in Europe. In France, a country of much greater wealth and capacity to produce inflation runs rampant, governments last only a few weeks. It seems absolutely impossible to establish anything approaching stability. What is wrong with France?

Inflation will some time have to be corrected, it cannot go on indefinitely, the longer it continues the greater will be the suffering and yet in all France there seems to be no man willing to face the issue in an effort to bring about stabilized conditions. If such a man existed would France rally to him, and yet it cannot be that France deliberately wants the continuance of present conditions.

France is the enigma of Europe, the enigma of the world.

One of the most amusing things of the present day is the continued chatter about profiteers. It is a subject that most people love to listen to and so they keep on at it regardless of the fact that strange to say there are fewer than we think.

What we have is a tremendous increase of the national income. For every dollar we had in 1913 we now have almost $2.60. This extra money is not the earnings of a scanty few, it is scattered widely over the country. Labor gets the largest share, the largest share, agriculture and other unincorporated business comes next on the list, and then we have investment income and a small declining amount for military, pay and allowances. It is good that agriculture should now stand so high. Net incomes of farm operators from the sale of farm products amounted to $467 million in 1913, the year of the opening of the war; in 1917 the total was $1,235 million. Net income of other unincorporated business in 1913 was $420 million, by 1917 it had reached a total of $1,119 million. Taking these groups together their total income amounted to $891 million in 1913 and reached a total of $2,354 million in 1917. It may be alright to shout for lower costs of living but when prices drop sharply there will be unemployment and the taxes we now pay will seem a great deal heavier than they now are. A few weeks ago the New York Times said this to say on the question.

"If prices were rolled back to November 1917 level, it is not unlikely that a few industries, in which wages rises subsequently were given, would find themselves unable to operate except at a loss unless a reduction in wages was made—for continued operation and expansion, an industry in our private enterprise system must be able to show a profit."

"In addition, there are many items particularly farm products that are selling below the November 1917 level. Corn and wheat, the two basic food crops, are in this category. Livestock is higher, but this reflects in part the high prices for grain that prevailed in the latter part of 1917 and in the first few months of this year. With grain prices now being stabilized around their support levels, there will be an incentive for livestock producers to increase output, which will mean that meat prices eventually will be in line with those prevailing for feed." Strange world isn't it, but very logical nevertheless.

NEWS NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Heninger accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Bill Nalder to Calgary Friday where Mrs. Nalder received medical treatment.

Mrs. Fannie Litchfield entertained at a dinner party Wednesday evening in honor of the birthday of her son Douglas. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Miller and Mrs. Caidon Hill and boy friends of Douglas.

CABINET IS BUSY

Judging from the activities of members of the Cabinet here, it is evident now that preparations are being made for the new session of Parliament which is to open probably sometime toward the end of January or a little later and it will be one of the most interesting sessions of recent years. Under a new leader, Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, the Cabinet is expected to be reorganized. Likewise, the official opposition will also show some changes following the resignation of Hon. John Bracken. In addition, some big issues will be on the agenda, including Newfoundland entry into confederation, new defence activities, fate of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board etc. All in all it is evident along Parliament Hill now that members of the cabinet are busy getting ready for a lively period ahead.

NOT—TOO—DISTANT

There has been a strong hint here that taxes will be cut in the coming budget as the Government reports a record surplus of $169,683,476 during the first six months of this fiscal year, but it remained for Revenue Minister McCann himself to stress its relative certainty when he declared that "we all look forward to the day when taxes will be lower which I can promise you will be in the not too far distant future." That future may mean the coming budget say observers here.

SLOW-UP

Non-essential building or expansion will be definitely slowed up or stopped entirely for the time being as a result of the Canadian Government's limitation of steel imports from the United States. It is learned in well-informed quarters in the capital, Theatre building and similar non-essential operations are going to be affected adversely by this restriction but it is also learned that some so-called border line cases may be slowed up, implying that production of cars, household equipment, washing machines etc., will not come on the market as quickly now as in previous months. However it is significant that whatever effects will be felt from this latest steel control the belief here is that these after-effects will not be serious except for those seeking cars for pleasure, new theatres and other such non-essential things under current conditions of a dangerous world crisis.

NOT NEW TENANTS
It is clear in this capital that many Canadians are worried about their legal status as tenants today but officials here point out that anyone who has sub-let a home or apartment from an original tenant is not considered "new tenant" if there is nothing in the original lease to prevent the tenant from sub-letting without the landlord's consent. Under these conditions the tenant can remain until the lease expires and have the same status as the original tenant provided all conditions of the lease are otherwise carried out. If the sub-let has taken place without the consent of the landlord where necessary the occupant is a "new tenant". Latest increases would apply definitely in such cases as well as other conditions.

NO COMMENT
Premier Duplessis of Quebec has suggested that provinces should be allowed to conduct lotteries for raising money for certain purposes but inquiries here have brought no official comment about this proposal save the unofficial information that a lottery is illegal and anyone "breaking" the law would be prosecuted, with the added remark that under the Criminal Code in Canada the provinces are obliged to administer the law.

SYMBOLS OF SAFETY

Simple thing, isn't it? Yet stair bannisters have probably saved many lives by preventing dangerous falls. In the home, they're a symbol of safety. In business, the modern dependable symbol of safety is your local Treasury Branch. And here's another helpful service they offer:

IT'S A GOOD IDEA TO BE SECURE!

Every Treasury Branch offers the security of safety deposit boxes, or safekeeping of valuables in the Treasury Branch safe. Look for service at the Symbol of Safety!

I'm Keeping the Power Flowing

ALBERTA'S NEEDS ARE GOING TO BE MET...

I've got two main concerns right now, and both of them are with the people of Alberta. First, I'm determined to see that the homes and industries I'm now serving are assured of continuous unbroken service, and secondly, I want to expand my present power lines to as many more rural areas as I can.

Naturally, that means plant capacity must be kept ahead of the demand and that is why I'm going ahead as fast as possible with the Spray Lakes project because it will add 100,000 h.p. to present capacity.

Other places on this continent are having to ration power because of insufficient capacity. That has not become necessary in Alberta, nor will it, if our present expansion plans can be kept to schedule.

into this gallery of frivolous fashions came unique circumstances and practical issues the average layman would not consider. To satisfy insurance underwriters, for example the toys must be waterproofed, fireproof, and antipool. A pop corn can once made by the Simples-Suit studios, held together with vegetable glue, disappeared quickly under the constant encroachment of mice. The studio now has so much experience in making the frail figures, that a single figurine done in 1944 showed up in 1948 after passing through six traceable sets of hands and innumerable warehouses, still satisfactory for use in store windows.

However anyone imagining that paper, scissors, and twenty four dollars can lead to a large and glamorous business had better take stock of their ingenuity and drive because two qualities are really what made Cecilia Staples click.

FASHION NOTE FROM BRITAIN; VELVET IS 1949 FASHION

MATERIAL

Velvet is the material of the 1949 season in the London collections. In all its variations, shot, toed silk and rayon to plain cotton velvet. It is given much prominence, is used for anything from slim suits in red, green, topped by corded, full-skirted coats, to afternoon and cocktail dresses and regal-looking trained evening dresses. But all fabrics, of all kinds, have not been so important for years, for "after six o'clock" gowns. This is an outcome of the popularity of the silk during the summer when it was one of the most fashionable materials worn.

Old man: "Suppose I were to tell you that I was bankrupt—that every cent of my fortune had been swept away—would you still be willing to marry my daughter?"

Young man: enthusiastically, "Why of course I would. Such a man as you could easily set to and make another fortune sir."

"My wife doesn't understand me, does yours?"

"Don't know that I ever heard her mention your name."

The teacher wanted to impress on his class that there was nothing a man could not do if he put his mind to it. Johnny Jones begged to differ. "Well", said the teacher, "tell me and the class what it is."

"You try to strike a match on a piece of soap", was the answer.

Father: "Your teacher says he can't teach you anything, Bill."

Bill: "I always knew he was no good."

"Sometimes", said the mistress, "it will be necessary for you to help the butler upstairs."

"I understand, madam", replied the new maid, "when he's had one too many."

WEEKLY WIND UP

"Our pay structure must be reformed for the three services and is under consideration by the Minister of National Defence", hinted a top-ranking official of this department. Demand for U.S. dollars to travel for pleasure has fallen so much in recent weeks that the customs staff at border points is being reduced, it is suggested.

With the cost of living still climbing up civil servants in this capital are showing signs of worrying about how to make the ends meet because a majority of them are not what one could call highly-paid workers, with this being the reason why they want a monthly living bonus since this would aid their efficiency and morale.

The famous "Red Dean", Very Rev. Hewless Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, is coming to Ottawa next month for a lecture here, though he was refused entry into the U.S. recently. Rumors that the Progressive Conservative national convention here which chose Premier Drew as leader was "packed" or "rigged", are ridiculed by those who know in this capital where such rumors are termed "old stuff".

A CHANGE IN OUR METHODS

Not many years ago most farmers sowed until June 1st to seed their spring crops, particularly grasses. At that time the land selected was summerfallow. The seed was planted with a nurse crop about two inches deep, and this was followed by the plow. What contrast there is between that method and the one now in use. We now seed grass in the fall, in clean, undisturbed grain stubble, about one-half inch deep. Fall seeding of grass was given extensive study in the early years of the P.E.R.A. regrassing program. Both early and late fall proved desirable, the early fall seedlings being made between September 1st and 15 and late fall seedlings just before freeze-up. If moisture conditions were favorable grasses seeded in early fall made some growth before winter. Late fall seedlings lie dormant under the snow but made quick growth early in the spring. This procedure was particularly suitable for crested wheatgrass which grows best in cool weather.

The use of nurse crops was discontinued because they use too much moisture, and the severe competition of a nurse crop in poor grass stands. However, protection for the small grass seedlings is very desirable and so the practice of seeding in stubble arose. Even seeding in dead annual weeds proved better than seeding with a nurse crop.

Most nurse crop seeds are small and consequently have very little food reserve. It is essential therefore that the seed be near the soil surface in order that the little seedlings will break through to sunlight shortly after germinating. Practically all forage crops do best when seeded in the upper half-inch of soil. For dry land pasture it is not too late to seed crested wheatgrass or home. Drill the seed into clean stubble about half an inch deep just before the ground freezes.

BACTERIAL RING ROT CAN BE PREVENTED BY SECOND-HAND BAGS

In spite of careful inspections carried out by officials of the Dominion Department of Agriculture during the production and harvest of Canadian Certified seed potatoes, it is occasionally found that fields planted with certified seed will contain tubers affected with bacterial ring rot. While it is not always possible to determine the source of infection in such cases, there are some hints for suspecting that all too often the seed was contaminated at digging time or in storage—at point of origin or at distributing centres—through the use of second hand bags.

Officials of the Dominion Department of Agriculture emphasize that it is most important to keep Canadian Certified seed free of this disease. The reputation of the individual grower, and of Canada as a whole, for the production of reliable seed potatoes, will be seriously impaired if stock carrying official certification tags is found to contain ring rot. Therefore, the most thorough precautions must be taken by each grower to guard his crop against infection from every possible source. Every certified seed potato grower should be familiar with the danger of contaminating his seed stock by using planters diggers or other equipment that has been used on a neighboring farm. The grower's safest plan, says agricultural officials, is to have his own equipment, and not lend it to his neighbor.

If it is necessary to lend, borrow or do custom work, equipment should be disinfected thoroughly before being moved from one farm to another. Some growers have overlooked however the danger of infection through the use of second hand bags during digging or shipping operations. These bags may previously contained table potatoes that were infected with ring rot, and it is dangerous to the seed crop to bring such sacks to a seed farm unless they are thoroughly disinfected. To disinfect such sacks it is suggested that they be soaked for two hours in a solution of formaldehyde—one pint to twenty five gallons of water.

Eternal vigilance is the price of safety, officials of the Dominion Plant Protection Division point out. Growers should keep constant watch especially at digging time—for signs of bacterial ring rot. Any potatoes showing soft rot at this time should be objects of suspicion, and samples should be sent to the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology in the Province, or to the local seed potato inspector. The present high reputation of Canadian certified seed potatoes can be maintained only by the co-operation of all concerned, in taking every precaution to prevent the spread of this destructive disease.

ALBERTA'S CAR TOTAL HITS RECORD LEVEL

Alberta's car registrations for this year already have hit record levels and are continuing to climb, according to information received by officials of the Alberta Motor Association. Consequently the revenue from this fruitful source will be greater than ever for the provincial government's treasury.

For the six months ended Sept. 30 the total number of passenger car licenses issued was 107,311. This was a gain of 8,927 over the same period in 1947, which in itself was a record year. Many new cars are on the highways, serving to boost the registration total while tourist motoring also has been a prime factor.

This year, Alberta probably will have 200,000 licensed car drivers. Up to the end of September the total was 191,259, as against 178,531 in the similar period of last year.

Officials are confident that by the end of the present license year March 31, 1949, Alberta will hold its topmost place among provinces which have made outstanding gains in car registrations.

There are good prospects that this year's total even will be exceeded in 1949, with a greatly increased holiday and tourist movement expected and many more motor vehicles on the highways.

With car licenses continuing to mount, there is every need of carrying on highway improvements designed to meet all demands and to build roads of a high standard which will appeal to motorists whether they live in Alberta or come here in touring cars.

SEEDTIME and HARVEST

By DR. F. J. GREANEY
Director,
Line Elevators Farm Service,
Winnipeg, Manitoba.

The Soil Which Sustains Us
Drought has again cast its shadow across the farmlands of Western Canada. This fall, as a result of one of the driest seasons in the history of western agriculture, many districts throughout the prairie provinces have experienced serious soil erosion and drought conditions. These unfortunate experiences are but a preview of what will be normal conditions in Western Canada this fall, or perhaps even 5 years from now, if the present rapid deterioration of our prairie soils goes on unchecked. The "Fertile Soil" that has been an indispensable element of the prairie farmer's success is being destroyed. Manured and fully fertilized, it will produce bumper crops; but if it is left to the mercy of wind and water, it will be blown away and washed away. From the standpoint of human welfare and world peace the maintenance of Canada's great food-producing resources—our prairie soils—is of paramount importance. It is, in fact, the very foundation of our national security.

A National Problem. The problem of conserving our prairie soil is of national importance and demands the attention of every citizen of the country, rural and urban. In this important work the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration is leading the way, but more funds, more technicians and, most of all, more conservation education are needed. Prairie farmers themselves must be the chief motive force in the trend towards the care and conservation of our rich land resources. It is important, therefore, that more and more farmers and land owners in Western Canada realize that their soil is their primary capital asset, and that its proper care is the first commandment of good farming. The good farmers of Western Canada are "keeping the land where it belongs". In doing this they are turning the master key which unlocks the door to a permanent and prosperous prairie agriculture.

POLITICAL IMPLICATION

If External Affairs Minister "Mike" Pearson is successful in the Algoma East Election on October 25, it may mark the start of a career which might make him a new strong contender to succeed Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, now 66, as new leader of the Liberal Party, according to a story heard behind the scene in this capital where impartial observers say that Mr. Pearson, now 51, is heading for this post and that is one of the reasons he gave up the certainty of his top civil service job for the uncertainty of political life.

Lions To Canvas For The Blind

The Raymond Lions Club have undertaken to canvass the Town for contributions to help the blind. The Canadian National Institute for the blind are doing a wonderful work in rehabilitating those who are unfortunate enough to have lost their sight and your contribution is needed to further the work of this organization.

When the canvasser calls on you between November 9th and 15 be generous when you reach into your pocket. Try to give some blind person a help in feeling the things you can see.

to attend the Convention of School Trustees in Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Kay B. Reid are in Calgary where Mr. Reid is a delegate from the local Labor Union to the Trades and Council there.

Sunday Club was held this week at the J. G. Gibb home. After the lesson by Gerald Gibb, the evening was spent in a social gathering.

Mr. J. S. Pollis and daughter Beth were in Medicine Hat Saturday where they attended the funeral of Mr. Pollis' nephew who was killed last week in a plane accident.

Mrs. Velma Vance left Monday for Cottage Lake, B.C., where she will enter training for a mental nurse.

Dr. Walker Heads Athletic Association

Last Wednesday evening the Raymond Athletic Association met in the Opera House for their annual meeting.

Election of officers resulted in Dr. J. Harris Walker being elected President of the Association with Glenn Mitchell as Vice President and Doris Stone as Secretary-Treasurer.

Financial statement of the Association was read by retiring Secretary Murray Holt.

The Athletic Association under the new executive will sponsor all sports and they have taken over the operation of the skating rink, the swimming pool and the tennis courts which were formerly operated by the town. Ice skaters will be put in the skating rink this year and Raymond will have two hockey teams, a senior and junior team.

Basketball will sponsor two teams, a senior and intermediate team. Under the tutelage of Glenn Mitchell and Hugh Court a boxing team will be organized.

Each sport will be responsible for its own finances and that means that the public must attend and support games and all other means the Athletic Association see fit to use to raise money.

There is no other means of raising finance than that. Your young people benefit from the efforts of the association and it is for that reason that the association operates. Your donation, large or small would be welcome and your support of all sport in Raymond is urgently sought. The new executive are anxious that sport in Raymond finance itself and urge the people to come out and help to do it.
